Simons Spring Opening.

About three thousand people visited the handsome department store of Harry Simon on Tuesday. The occasion being the spring opening display of a handsome stock of spring and summer wearing apparel for ladies and children.

The large crowd, including visitors from Lexington, Georgetown, Cynthiana and all neighboring cities, began to call early and a continuous stream was kept up during the entire day.

The store was most beautifully decorated and appeared to its best advantage, the work being executed by the master hand of his expert window decorator, Mr. Roy Smith. Mr. and Mrs. Simon extended the glad hand to every visitor, and with a cordial invitation of "call again" the ladies left glad of the opportunity of having witnessed the handsomest display of the kind ever seen in Paris.

Miss Edwards, of New York City, the head of the millinery department, assisted by Mrs. Frank Paton, Mrs. Simon, and a score of salesladies, certainly should feel proud of the exhibit in the millinery department, as the ladies were certainly profuse in their praise of the elegant hats that were on display.

From 1 to 6 p. m. the Elks' band discoursed beautiful music and instead of one feeling that they had visited a business house, it seemed more like having attended a social function.

Mr. George Kriener, with his pleasant Wm. Jennings Bryan smile, was a very busy man in the Queen Quality shoe department.

Brutus Clay's Stock Barn Burned.

Tuesday evening about 6:30 o'clock the large stock barn of Brutus Clay, five miles from Paris on the Winchester pike was totally destroyed by fire together with its contents.

The family were at supper when the flames, which came from a pile of hay on the inside of the building burst through the roof and when Mr. Clay and several farm hands reached the scene of the fire had gained such headway as to make it impossible to remove any of the contents to a place of safety. Baled hay to the value of $1,500 went up in smoke and flame.

Mr. Clay had used the barn throughout the winter for the feeding of a big bunch of cattle and as a number of hogs are missing it is supposed they were in the building. The fire is believed to have been of incendiary origin and following up his idea Mr. Clay telephoned to Capt. V. K. Milliken, of Lexington, who with two of his bloodhounds arrived on the ten o'clock interurban car, but because of the fact that the ground was comparatively dry and there had been a number of people about the barn since the incendiaries were supposed to have been there the dogs were unable to take the trail.

The barn being situated near the Clay residence and other outbuildings of the farm, a disastrous fire was averted by the direction of the wind, which carried the heat and flames away from the buildings. Mr. Clay's loss is approximately $3,000 with $1,000 insurance.
